The Northeast got hit with a ton of snow over the past couple of days, some may even have record breaking amounts. Can you imagine if this was the first time you were introduced to snow? Some people have never even seen it! Snow can be magical or it can be terrifying. Through this little kitten's eye it was definitely magical. Watch as the snow falls from the sky and the little kitten is both excited and intrigued as he tries to catch those mesmerizing floating pillows through the window.

What did your pets do the first time they saw snow? Do you have a video? If so, post it on our Facebook page and we may just promote it!
